Executive summary

This deliverable reports on the Gender and Interdisciplinary Education for Engineers (GIEE) conference held in Paris, June 23th and 24th, 2011. The conference was organized by the HELENA consortium with the aim to present the results of the HELENA project to the community of researchers involved in women participation in engineering, as well as to confront the HELENA results to the other studies in the field.

The deliverable is divided into several sections. Firstly, a synthetic report covering a detailed view on the conference organizational structure, numbers of papers presented, numbers of conference participants, and key note speakers is given. The next section gives the scientific report by Pr Jean Michel, the chairperson of the Scientific Committee. The section 3 presents the programme of the conference (timetable), while the section 4 introduces the abstracts of conference papers and key note speeches. The dissemination of the conference is the topic of the last section.

The Call for papers, the List of conference participants, and the Abstracts of conference papers and posters are given in the appendices.

The importance of the conference topic and the interest of researchers in the field were confirmed by the large number of conference participants. More than one hundred of people attended the conference and participated in the very interesting discussions on 21 research papers that were presented in the two conference days.
